| Purpose of Disbursement  | Refund of Contribution  |
|--|---|
| 1. Operating Expenses: The primary purpose of the disbursement is to cover the day-to-day costs of running the business, such as salaries, rent, utilities, and materials. These expenses are necessary for the business to generate revenue and are not directly tied to a specific contribution. 2. Capital Expenditures: Disbursements used for purchasing or improving long-term assets, such as equipment, vehicles, or real estate, are considered capital expenditures. These costs are typically spread out over the useful life of the asset through depreciation or amortization. 3. Debt Repayment: Disbursements used to pay back loans or other forms of debt are considered repayments. These payments are not considered a refund of the contribution because they are used to settle a liability that was incurred by the business. 4. Dividend Payments: Disbursements made to the owners or shareholders of the business as a return on their investment are considered dividends. These payments are made out of the business's profits and are not a refund of the contribution. | 1. Refund of Capital: If the business has received a contribution that was used to purchase a specific asset, and that asset is sold or disposed of, the proceeds from the sale may be used to refund the contribution to the donor. This is typically done when the asset is sold for less than its original cost, or when the business decides to liquidate the asset. 2. Refund of Operating Expenses: In some cases, the business may have received a contribution that was specifically designated for a particular purpose, such as covering a specific operating expense. If the business is able to identify and track these expenses, it may be able to refund the contribution to the donor. 3. Refund of Debt Repayment: If the business has received a contribution that was used to pay back a loan, and the loan is eventually paid off, the business may be able to refund the contribution to the donor. 4. Refund of Dividend Payments: If the business has received a contribution that was used to pay dividends, and the dividends are eventually paid out, the business may be able to refund the contribution to the donor. |
